I am extremely supportive of returning to in person voting. When voters approved mail in voting we were completely unaware of how much the democrats would use it as a tool to manipulate votes in their favor. Returning to in person voting is a step in the right direction to restore election integrity to our once great state, which is clearly failing miserable under this falsely imposed democratic strangle hold. The only people who would be opposed to returning to in person voting are those who know mail in ballots ensure the ability to manipulate votes and are afraid of losing their majority if elections were truly fair.
