Being able to vote by mail is one of the many wonderful things about Oregon. When it comes time to vote, my family and I sit at our dining room table over a meal and discuss the positions up for election and the candidates. We vote together. No long lines, no voting booths, no uncertainty whether you pulled the right lever.

Voting by mail makes voting accessible for all. Which is how voting should be to truly represent our population and for the power of democracy to be realized.
