Voting by mail is the most informative way to vote. Voting by mail gives people time to discuss the candidates and issues, prevents people from not being able to get to an election site on Election Day, or to be discouraged from voting because of long lines. Vote by mail is one of the reasons I loved moving to Oregon. I'm sure it's more economical too. The question I have is why would you change the system if it works and is resource efficient? I can't imagine the motives to do away with mail voting are pure, are they?
