I strongly oppose efforts to make voting more difficult. I have family members living in states where in-person voting is the norm, and I've witnessed how often they miss voting due to logistical challenges. Without a federal holiday for voting, many people struggle to find the time or resources to get to a polling location. This leads to lower voter participation. Since moving to Oregon, I have been able to vote 100% of the time, thanks to our mail-in voting system, which makes voting accessible and convenient for all.
