SB210

Oregon has been one of the leading states allowing mail-in voting and over the many years of its existence mail-in voting has been successful. In-person voting is also available. But mail-in voting has allowed those voters who do not have easy access to in-person voting sites to fulfill their constitutional right to vote.

Further, I believe the constitution instructs that each state has a right to determine the method by which its constituents vote. I don't believe Donald Trump should have the constitutional right to determine how Oregonians choose to vote. It's federal overreach and would negatively impact voting access

Oregon's mail-in voting has been operating successfully and should continue to do so.

Sincerely,

Susan Schulz
