Oregon's current vote-by-mail system is convenient and secure. It makes voting more possible for those who live in rural areas, for those who have mobility issues, senior citizens, and others who would find it difficult to stand in potentially long lines to cast a vote. Given that our national elections are held in November, inclement weather may also be a factor. I know many people who will not drive in icy or snowy weather, making it impossible to vote if the weather is poor.

We have a safe, secure, reliable system that has worked for many years. I see no reason to revert to in-person voting!
