Voting by mail in Oregon is an institution that has led to higher voter turnouts and more access for all Oregonians to vote. All demographics benefit from being able to contemplate who and what they want to vote for. My elderly grandmother would have a horrible time trying to navigate the polls on foot. I would have had a hard time during college, and would have a hard time when I have to work on election day. It would bring our state to a halt if we all had to go to the polls on election day. It's a waste of time and money to change methods.
