

Submitter: morton smith

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Rules

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB210

Why does anyone want to change a mail-in voting process that has been so successful for decades?

The only apparent reason seems to be that, when it's easy for most citizens to vote, some folks don't like the results.

The old saying seems to be appropriate here: "if it ain't broke, don't try to fix it".

Sincerely,

Morty Smith & Mary Rexford