Mail-in voting has worked well for Oregon for years. It's been proven safe. The fact that one's preferred slate of candidates didn't win is not evidence of fraud.

As I recall from when it was introduced, mail-in voting is also considerably cheaper than in-person voting.

In-person voting can also be manipulated. In some states, limiting the number of places where one can vote has substantially cut into the right to vote.

Keep our current system.
