Voting by mail is the method that is the safest, least error-prone, most inclusive, and most likely to result in an informed electorate. Voting by mail allows people with schedules that don't line up with polling-place hours to vote; it allows time for research and thorough consideration of candidates and measures; and it supports people with disabilities or care responsibilities, who may have trouble leaving their home.

I think voting by mail should be the standard across this country; I certainly don't think that Oregon should get rid of it!
