Changing Oregon's mail in ballot process for elections to "in person" voting would be far more expensive than the present system and would only serve to disenfranchise and suppress voting rights for many groups of individuals who lack access to transportation, who are disabled, elderly people, single parents, people working multiple jobs or even one job without paid leave. We all know why Trump opposes mail in ballots; let's not kid ourselves. If the present system has minor glitches that need to be addressed, then let's address those glitches and only those glitches. Period.
