

Submitter: Jessica John

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Rules

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB210

The bill to end vote-by-mail in Oregon is not only a step backward from a secure, cost-effective, and high-turnout system—it's a transparent attempt to disenfranchise voters. Vote-by-mail increases access for working people, caregivers, and those in rural areas—groups that disproportionately include women. Ending it makes voting harder for the very people whose voices are already underrepresented, and that's no accident.