

Submitter:

Claire Massey

On Behalf Of:

Committee:

Senate Committee On Rules

Measure, Appointment or Topic:

SB210

The push towards in person voting by the current administration is not an attempt to fight voter fraud, it is a campaign to restrict the amount of people who can vote as much as much as possible to make manipulating the demographics that participate easier.

Voting is a right and responsibly of every citizen of this nation. It is the moral prerogative (and simply more useful for a real government) to maximize the amount of people that actually participate.