I don't think this is constitutional. My mom was very sick and unable to leave the house at times due to her medical issues. My mom's vote mattered she was as much as American as anyone else it would have been wrong for her vote not to have been counted. My mom was one person but there are lots of people in this same boat some who served our Country how would it be right for them not to have their voice heard. If we support Democracy we support the rights of people to be able to afforded the opportunity to vote even if they are unable to do it in person. I believe this Country needs change I just don't think this the right way accomplish it.
