Democracy is government by consent of the governed. A government which strives to be a democracy should strive to hear as many voters as possible. Oregon's vote by mail system has been an exemplary tool for democracy. It's faster, cheaper and more convenient than in person voting. It allows voters to carefully consider their choices. It brings elections to voters, helping us remember to participate in elections we might have otherwise missed. If you care about democracy, you will vote to keep mail in voting for every registered voter in the state.
