SB210

I oppose this. I am a chronically ill 20-something year old with conditions that either limit my mobility or they make it challenging to know when I will feel okay enough to leave my house. This bill would force me to leave, perhaps on a bad pain day, and expose myself to crowds of people that could make me very sick. Not only that, but I actually had a very scary experience voting in person this last election day where a man was outside of the elections office on 11th and Morrison with a gun and they had to lock down the office and then escort me to my uber when my ride showed up. This happened right after the time deadline for votes while I was waiting to be picked up. I personally did not actually see a gun but other people were running and yelling "he has a gun!" so I ran inside and the police and security went out to look for the guy. Due to this, people being unpredictable and volatile, and the wicked flu I got afterwards, I do not ever want to vote in person again. Please do not pass this bill, it can put people like me at risk for illness or unsafe situations.
