SB210

Oregon's vote-by-mail system makes voting dramatically more accessible for residents such as myself. It prevents work/family obligations, disability, or lack of transportation options from interfering in our ability to vote, and the convenience of it motivates people to vote when they might not have bothered otherwise. Eliminating it and requiring in-person voting would decrease voter turnout in the state by a significant margin. This bill is a naked attempt at voter suppression under the guise of preventing voter fraud, and it should not be tolerated.
