Mail-in voting is an Oregon institution that enables many constituents to cast votes when they otherwise might not be able to due to disability, lack of transportation, work commitments, or other reasons. There is no evidence of voter fraud that utilizes this system on any scale that could impact the outcome of an election.

It's well known that higher voter turnout favors progressives; this bill is a blatant effort by conservative politicians to suppress voters in an attempt to gain an advantage in future elections. Not only should this bill be rejected outright, any officeholder who supported or advanced it should be impeached, recalled or otherwise removed from office.
