Dear, Senate Committee On Rules:

I strongly oppose the proposal to eliminate mail-in ballots and make in-person voting the law in Oregon. As a citizen, I consider voting to be a serious duty to support a democratic government. I have voting in every election since I was 18. When I first moved to Oregon, over 20 years ago, I thought mail-in voting was weird, but, once an election official told me about all the safeguards that were used to ensure a fair election, I thought it was the best thing ever. Not only does mail-in voting make voting so easy that it allows more people to vote, but it affords me the time I need to research the topics and the candidates. All of this can only benefit a democratic society. Thank you for your consideration in this matter and I hope you will see fit to continue mail-in voting.

Sincerely, Dominic Anaya
