SB210

I oppose this bill. The evidence has shown that states with mail-in voting, historically and in modern elections, experience less voter fraud and are more secure than the national average. There is no logical reason to regress to only having same-day, in-person elections, other than to make it harder for people to cast their votes. Whether this bill is due to ignorance or is a willful attempt at voter suppression, the malicious outcomes are the same, and the people backing it should be treated opponents of people exercising their democratic rights.
