This is a waste of time and predicated on fictions and lies by Republicans that are afraid of the increased voter turnout that occurs when voting is made accessible. Maybe if they were serious they would also make election day a paid holiday for all Oregonians in order to ensure that working class people don't have to sacrifice in order to be heard at the ballot box, along with putting in place free IDs for all. But they don't, and they routinely fail to produce any robust evidence that mail-in voting is less secure than in-person voting, so it's clear that what they really care about is making voting more burdensome for ordinary citizens whose opinions they consider "undesirable." Any representative who votes in favor of this should be voted out of office in the next election.
