I am an Oregon Resident and have been for the vast majority of my life. However, having lived in Wyoming for long enough to participate in an election while living there, I can say first hand that forcing In-Person voting is a hardship. I believe that forcing people to vote in person creates a hardship for many people and will decrease voter turnout. It is my belief that this constitutes voter suppression and is simply intolerable. We should be encouraging more voter turnout, not making it harder to vote. I have no concerns about non-citizens voting and I believe that such claims are overblown. Please keep our voting laws the way they are and maintain mail in voting as a primary method of voting. Thank you
