SB210

There is absolutely no reason to go back to the archaic ways of in-person voting. This measure is a disgrace to the democratic process that Oregon has been spearheading by allowing people to submit their votes by mail, not to mention the added costs associated with forcing in-person voting. Voting ought to be accessible for everyone who is allowed to vote and voting by mail just ensures this is possible.

The DMV, a state of Oregon government authority, already validates the citizenship and authority to vote prior to registering a person to vote. Why is this not good enough? If you can't trust the government you hired, then you hired the wrong people to do the job.
