SB210

It's simple: Oregon is a national example of how effective - and bipartisan - mail-in voting is. We should be strengthening our leading system rather than trying to dismantle it.

I have only ever voted by mail in Oregon and it's certainly helped me be more involved in government and a more informed voter. Reviewing the voter pamphlet on my own time and filing out my ballot when it's convenient is a right that should continue to be available for all Oregonians.
