Hi there,

Mail-in voting makes participating in our political system vastly easier. I voted a few times in line while living in California and it was not the best experience. Dropping my ballot off on my way to work makes everything about voting much less stressful.

In addition to not having to worry about waiting in line, it gives underserved communities the chance to make their voices heard in our political system due to not having to take time off of work, especially since we do not have federal or state holidays for voting in elections.

The ability to sit with the ballot at my own home, compare the candidates on my computer or with the voters pamphlet, and making the decisions in a relaxed environment further enhances the confidence that I'm choosing to vote for the correct people.

Please do not allow domestic terrorists from the GOP attempt to upend Oregon's voting system.

Thank you.
