So many of us have work hours and other obligations that make voting in person difficult or complicated, and the mail in ballot system has allowed people like myself to participate easily and without losing pay. The potential for voter fraud is actually very low and the benefits of allowing people to vote more easily and conveniently well outweighs any downsides. Let all people have their vote and their voice, even those who can't easily make it physically to the polls within a narrow window of time due to work, transportation issues, or other considerations.
