SB210

Mail-in voting has been an important tool in educating our daughter about the practicalities of civics and civics engagement.

We are able to explore and discuss candidates and measures together on our own timeframe, but in a task-oriented way.

We also still punctuate and celebrate the act of voting by going together to our ballot drop-off point, an activity that would become harrowing, boring, and unnecessarily lengthy and congested.

Mail-in voting obviously improves overall enfranchisement, but please remember that it is more enjoyable for the electorate, and more efficient for the state.
