Committee: Senate Committee On Energy and Environment

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB1187

In full support of SB1187, to pass a law in Oregon to have polluters pay for costs of climate change effects. Setting up a Climate Superfund Cost Recovery Account is timely as a start to create a climate superfund type program.

As it appears likely that FEMA funds may not be available to help states and local jurisdiction to finance ongoing effects of climate change. LCDC should lead an interagency team to study costs of greenhouse gas emissions toward creation of a superfund type program for cost recovery
