I support this bill wholeheartedly. The poor ecological condition of private timberlands in Oregon is disgraceful. Timber harvest activities need to be regulated for the good of the environment and the people of this great state. Letting private interests and greed control the activities on all lands of this state and nation is a huge mistake when considering that ecological and human health is dependent on a healthy ecosystems. We must change our ways so that our land management decisions serve the general good and the health and prosperity of future generations.
