Dear Senate Committee on Rules,

I'm writing to voice my strong support for SB210, which makes in-person voting on Election Day the standard method for conducting elections.

Recent events in Oregon highlighted how even well-intentioned systems like automatic voter registration can lead to errors, such as noncitizens mistakenly being added to voter rolls. This issue shows the vulnerabilities in our system. In-person voting provides an extra layer of security, ensuring that only eligible voters cast ballots.

Making in-person voting the standard method will help restore confidence in our elections, ensuring that every vote counts and that voters can trust the process. We cannot afford to wait for more mistakes or confusion to undermine public trust in our elections! Making in-person voting the standard is a necessary step to protect the integrity of our democracy and make sure that every vote is counted properly.

I urge you to support SB210. Your integrity and the integrity of our elections demand this course of action. Anything less speaks volumes and history will not forget.
