This bill is a 'solution looking for a problem' which usually means there's another motive. Making it harder for citizens to get initiatives onto the ballot reduces the voice and power of said citizens, further consolidating power into the hands of professional political organizations. There are so many efforts that the citizens do not want which elected officials continue to try to push through - RCV, Tolling, Increased Taxation in a high tax state. I oppose this measure to maintain at least one area of balance between citizens and politicians which is especially in a state where one party tends to dominate. Thank you.
