

February 11, 2025

Senator Sara Gelser Blouin
Committee on Human Services
Oregon Senate

Senator Gelser Blouin and Members of the Committee:

This testimony is submitted on behalf of the Institute on Development and Disability, which includes: Oregon Office on Disability and Health, University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities, and the Oregon Center for Children and Youth with Special Health Needs at Oregon Health & Science University. Collectively, our centers ask for your support regarding Senate Bill 20, which will require the Oregon Health Authority to provide medical assistance to employed individuals with disabilities without regard to income or resources, removing asset and income eligibility restrictions for Medicaid recipients receiving long-term supports.

This Bill seeks changes to eligibility limitations to the Employed Persons with Disabilities (EPD) program. The EPD is important because it allows employed people with disabilities to receive medical coverage and long-term services. Long-term services are not usually included in major medical insurance plans, and so in many cases, individuals with disabilities do not have alternatives for these supports, services, and coverage. The ability to maintain access to these services through the Medicaid program is essential to the health and well-being of many people with disabilities.

Unfortunately, the current EPD income and resource limits force many people with disabilities who rely on long-term services to reduce their incomes, limit assets, and even forego employment opportunities in order to maintain needed services. In Oregon and across the nation, trends indicate that people with disabilities are underemployed, and that they are more likely to work part-time and earn lower average incomes than people without disabilities. Public policies - including limits on income and assets for people with disabilities to receive Medicaid benefits - contribute to this reality. To be eligible for long-term supports and services through Medicaid Buy-In, an employed Oregonian with a disability must limit their income to below 250% of the Federal Poverty Level ($32,000 for a family of 1 or $55,000 for a family of 3). This amount limits individuals with disabilities from many types of employment and opportunities for advancement. EPD eligibility requirements also limit countable assets to $5,000, making it impossible for employed individuals with disabilities to save for the future well-being of themselves and their families.

Denying individuals employment or income opportunities on the basis of disability is unjust. To promote health and prevent long-term illness, promoting upstream social determinants of health is of utmost importance. Employment and income are two such social determinants that act as strong predictors of health status. The stress that accompanies an unstable financial safety net has further negative effect

School of Medicine Department of Pediatrics

Institute on Development and Disability

Child Development and
Rehabilitation Center
Mail Code: CDRC
707 SW Gaines Street
Portland, OR 97239-2901

The Institute Includes:

Child Development and
Rehabilitation Center

University Affiliated Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities

Oregon Center for Children and Youth with Special
Health Needs

Oregon Office on Disability and Health

Hemostasis & Thrombosis
Center

Leadership Education in Neurodevelopmental
Disabilities

February 11, 2025

Correspondence To Senator Sara Gelsler Bluin, Committee on Human Services

Page 2 of 2

on health. Receiving needed healthcare, including long-term supports, should not limit an individual's right to work or to receive deserved compensation for that work, regardless of disability status.

Collectively, our group of centers works with individuals with disabilities, families, clinicians, researchers and many others toward the goal of promoting the health and quality of life of people with disabilities. We embrace the right of people with disabilities to determine the course of their lives and to live as fully integrated, contributing members of their communities, and we strive for health equity. To achieve these goals, we must allow all in Oregon access to health care and the opportunity to prosper economically. Removing the income and asset limitations to the EPD program is an important step toward health equity for people with disabilities in Oregon. Thank you for your support of SB 20.

Respectfully,

Kurt Freeman, Ph.D., ABPP
Fred Fax Endowed Professor of Pediatrics
Director, Institute on Development and Disability

Willi Horner-Johnson, Ph.D.
Professor, OHSU-PSU School of Public Health Director, Oregon Office on Disability and

Benjamin Hoffman, M.D.
Professor of Pediatrics,
Director, Oregon Center for Children and Youth with Special Health Needs

Rhonda Eppelsheimer, M.S.W., LCSW
Associate Professor of Pediatrics
Co-Director, University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities