I am writing this in support of allowing local and small farms to maintain the ability to use their own water resources. I think politics are continuing to add more and more constraints on local communities and monopolize on resources that drive up costs and reduces access to what should be freely available to people. Stop taking from communities. Stop putting big town thinking into rural areas. For CENTURIES farmers have been wonderful providers to the people, and now days it's all being slowly taken away because of policies that don't protect local people. Stop starving local farmers out of natural resources. Go spend political resources to focus on toxic commercial farming and make those Healthy to the local people.
