HB2583

I am in support of HB 2583 because I have seen the difference it has made for my daughter who struggles with severely with her mental health. Her virtual charter school has made it possible for her to see that she can be successful. I work in the education system and see how different each student is. Some students thrive on showing up every day physically, but fail all of their classes. Yet, he we are continuing to support them financially. Why is this ok, but giving support to students who want to be successful from home, are more independent, contribute by having more time to work in their communities and require less human interaction to learn isn't? With the new technology we have now and the growing population, I do not see why this should not be a supported option for children whose needs it meets. Please consider that children learn in different ways and recognizing this is the first step to making positive change. Thank you.
