So to decrease kids taking the bus to school. The state wants to have buses that can't make a normal bus route. This will basically shutdown the school bus system. The various cities that have zero emission city bus systems can't keep them running . And have had to change the normal bus routes drastically to make the zero emission buses look like they are working . And from initial cost of the zero bus to the final decision to get rid of them the cost is just wasted tax dollars. But maybe the is what the state wants.
