It is critically important that health care decisions be made by physicians and their patients, and NOT by management or owners of a medical facility. IMO, for a management person or team or owner of a medical facility to make healthcare decisions is malpractice. I don't need to tell you there is a lot of complexity involved in much of medical decision making. Healthcare is not a commodity, like purchasing a car or a TV!

Thank-you for your ethical consideration,

Sincerely,

Janet
