I believe this SB 916 would help us keep our line strong. Many of us can't afford to be on strike for days or weeks, but we also don't want to break our Union contract by crossing the line, which can result in penalties to the member. Leaving us with hard decisions like, do we stay to support our cause and are union brother and sisters, or do we pay our bills and the pay penalties for breaking contract.

I am submitting testimony in support of Senate Bill 916 to end the exclusion of Unemployment Insurance benefits for workers when they are on strike in Oregon.

Strikes are never the first choice for workers—they are the last resort after exhausting all other options. Often, workers continue showing up under expired contracts for months or even years because they care about their jobs and their communities. But when an employer refuses to bargain in good faith, workers sometimes have no choice but to strike. SB 916 is a commonsense policy that ensures striking workers can still afford necessities like rent, groceries, and healthcare.

Employers already hold significant leverage in these situations, and many use tactics like cutting healthcare benefits to pressure workers back to the table. If employers can take away healthcare, then workers should have the right to access unemployment benefits. UI is not a full paycheck—it is a partial wage replacement that allows workers to survive while they fight for fair contracts.

This policy comes at an extremely low cost to the UI fund and has minimal impact on employers. In the rare cases of public sector strikes, the ability to access UI benefits will make a meaningful difference for workers.

Passing SB 916 will lead to fairer negotiations, shorter strikes, and a more balanced bargaining process. Oregon workers deserve this basic protection.
