

Submitter: Richard Koury

On Behalf Of:

Committee: House Committee On Education

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB1098

Parents are the primary director of their children as long as not violating US law. Therefore any elimination of these inherent human privileges' is unconstitutional. Public schools have not right in overriding the parents determination of what literature is available to there children. Abandon any and all state laws that deters this parental right.