The portion of the bill, which I had not enough time to read all of the "whereofs and therefore," that relates to the ridiculous changes to the quite successful Oregon Bottle Bill which provides motivated individuals who need the supplement to help their lives in many cases, AND keeps the terrain relatively free of the broken bottles and crushed cans that would otherwise be everywhere as they used to be is completely unsatisfactory in my opinion. What is the motivation to always do everything to destroy clean programs for needy people??? Basically, I guess I say Shame on You, Shame on the untaxed corporations who do not provide promised benefits to other than a rare group. I'm embarrassed for you. Shame on the corporations who pay the lowest possible wages, no healthcare, no retirement to foreign workers who quite simply devote their lives to gaining a few dollars with the prayers that they can provide enough to their babies and children to survive while our glorious corporations use the money to advertise and politicize. It's notting short of really not admirable! Time to develop character and integrity, do something to support your once gorgeous, maybe someday again, country.
