I write and support of funding for the Portland center for performing arts at Portland State University. This $85 million will be transformative not only for the university and the student body, but for the entire city of Portland and the overall region. This money will be well spent and is a much needed investment in our state at a moment when we need something to be very hopeful about. Portland State is a responsible steward of state funds as they have proven in the past, serving many students from the region and beyond. As a key neighbor in our downtown corridor, they are the right entity to steward this important arts project forward.
