To whom it may concern,

On behalf of Energy Trust of Oregon, I am pleased to support Consejo Hispano efforts to benefit the Latinx community on Oregon's North Coast.

Energy Trust is an independent nonprofit organization dedicated to helping 2.4 million utility customers and communities across the state invest in and benefit from energy efficiency and clean, renewable power. We provide cash incentives and services to help utility customers and local leaders make improvements to save energy, generate or benefit from renewable power, and manage energy costs in homes, businesses and communities. We collaborate closely with a network of skilled contractors, installers and builders through our Trade Ally Network.

In support of this mission, we work closely with nonprofits and community-based organizations like Consejo Hispano to reach customers in rural and coastal areas and in need of critical resources. In the past, we have supported Consejo Hispano by sponsoring and tabling at its resource fairs and events to help connect with the Hispanic and Latinx community. In our experience, Consejo Hispano has been an effective and trusted collaborator in serving these customers. As planned, Casa Mariposa would serve as a community hub and offer a variety of much-needed services to youth and families on the North Coast.

Thank you,

Sue Fletcher
