HB3365

This bill smacks of state government indoctrination. It is for letting teachers off the hook for teaching hard sciences, math, and reading so that young people can form their own opinion about the complexity of climate - rather than telling students the same old grossly oversimplified narrative of Man bad and the oppressor, nature good and pure, the victim. The real scam are the politicians and carpet baggers upping their power and making a bank off of the existing climate change narrative. Much of the rest of country and world are already de-emphasizing the existing climate change narrative. But not Oregon where those in power and with access to public monies are clutching to their lucrative climate change gig.
