There's a campsite right in front of my apartment building in Portland, and I have to step over poop every morning from it. Also, parked in front of my church is an RV where a woman rents herself out and regularly has meth from her orgies waft into the church. She's not paying the transient occupancy tax or Portland's business tax.

Why isn't the Portland Police Department collecting the transient lodging tax and using it to promote Poop City? It seems that tax collection among this state's campsites
