I have been a practicing PT for the last 14 years. I became certified in dry needling several years ago. I can honestly tell you through all my training there are few things that have completely changed my practice. Dry needling is one of those things. My patients love it and I have seen dramatic outcomes when it is applied to their care. I strongly recommend you allow PTs in Oregon to add this to the interventions they can apply to their patients to help them reduce their pain and improve their function.
