

Submitter:

Karen Kelsky

On Behalf Of:

Committee:

Senate Committee On Education

Measure, Appointment or Topic:

HB3365

There is nothing more critical to future generations' welfare and safety than a stable climate. All young people must be educated about human impacts on climate so that they can be prepared to take action as kids and as adults. Ignoring this problem will not solve it and future generations should have all the knowledge and tools possible to deal with it.