TO: Capital Construction Subcommittee of the Joint Ways and Means Committee

RE: SB 5531- Lottery Bonds - Support of Eastern Oregon Collaborative Center

Dear Chair Girod, Co-Chair Nosse, and Members of the Capital Construction Subcommittee:

High Desert Partnership is a nonprofit organization that serves Harney County and rural Eastern Oregon. Our request is about the power of community and collaboration and our plan to expand the work of High Desert Partnership.

The Eastern Oregon Collaborative Center will serve ever increasing requests from groups in this region to work collaboratively using a model we have been practicing for nearly 20 years. A center in our region will benefit the state by providing more place-based coordination with state agencies in our rural outposts. Increased ability to leverage state resources to implement collaborative projects and also by reducing litigation when people are not working together. No other organization provides the level of support across a variety of topics that High Desert Partnership supports. A center such as this does not exist anywhere in the region.

The center will be a base for collaborative partners, agencies and organizations working in eastern Oregon and will provide economic benefit in the region. This center will connect and grow community-based resources leading to greater community resilience in the region.

I believe this is no better time than now to invest in cultivating collaboration and building relationships in rural eastern Oregon. In Harney County, we have been through it all, floods, droughts, economic hardships, groundwater concerns, wildfires and more. Yet, we keep coming though and I believe this is in part due to our culture of collaboration. Let us show how we can expand collaboration for rural Oregon through our Eastern Oregon Collaborative Center.

Sincerely,

Brenda Smith

Eastern Oregon's Collaborative Success Story

For 20 years, High Desert Partnership (HDP) has emerged as a nationally recognized leader in solving complex rural challenges through collaboration:

- HDP's network of six collaboratives bring essential resources to eastern Oregon's rural communities.
- HDP maximizes every dollar by strategically leveraging federal, state, and philanthropic funding.
- HDP's collaborative model builds community resilience and delivers tangible results.

The Power of High Desert Partnership's Collaborative Model

- Successful collaboration requires four key elements: relationship-building, neutral facilitation, adequate meeting space, and administrative support.
- HDP ensures diverse stakeholders have a seat at the table and invest in building lasting relationships.
- While collaboration takes time, collaborative participants understand this investment creates durable, resilient solutions.

Relationship-Building

RELATIONSHIP BUILDING IS THE HEART OF HDP COLLABORATION

Neutral Facilitation

EFFECTIVE FACILITATION ENSURES INCLUSIVE, CONSENSUS-DRIVEN COLLABORATIVE ACTION

Adequate Meeting Space

MEETINGS GATHER DIVERSE PERSPECTIVES, COMMITTED TO WORKING TOGETHER

Administrative Support

SUPPORTING PEOPLE WORKING TOGETHER BEGINS WITH A HDP COORDINATOR AND FUNDING

High Desert Partnership's Vision: The Eastern Oregon Collaborative Center

- HDP proposes establishing a dedicated Eastern Oregon Collaborative Center in Harney County.
- This center will build upon HDP's proven track record of transcending conflicts and achieving progress in one of Oregon's historically divided regions.
- The center will provide:
 - A physical facility with meeting, office, and work spaces.
 - Staffing to manage operations.
 - Resources to support both new and existing collaborative initiatives.
 - A learning hub for collaborative strategies.
 - A base for collaborative partners, agencies and organizations working in eastern Oregon.

Why Oregon Needs This Investment

- Currently, the demand for HDP's collaborative services exceeds HDP's administrative and physical capacity.
- No other organization provides these essential collaboration services in eastern Oregon.
- This center will connect and grow community-based resources leading to:
 - Greater ecological resilience
 - Economic growth
 - Social vitality in remote rural communities
- The center will make efficient use of limited resources by:
 - Leveraging state funding with private and federal dollars
 - Reducing costly litigation and conflict
