

Spinal manipulation

I have practice 41 years. The last 10 years I feel I really got it. I was okay and even better than average at spinal manipulation before that but the last 10 years, I was EXCELLENT at it. This is not something you pick up at a weekend seminar. It is an art. I always recognized that this patient in front of me is not going to have any event in their life today that is more important than me adjusting their spine and ultimately their nerve system.

Please don't let unskilled hand do this important procedure. I promise you, it is way more precise than it looks just watching it done. Picture your spouse or child in the hands of someone with limited skills.
