I have brought many birds to Chintimini Wildlife Center in Corvallis for rehabilitation and release back into life in their unconfined natural environment. Each time, I have felt that sense of having done good in this world that is so rare to achieve in these overwhelming times. This summer, I'm planning on taking visiting family there and having the four family children experience some of the kids programs Chintimini offers. Chintimini Wildlife Center has for many years been and I hope can for many years continue to be a key resource in our efforts to protect biodiversity, one needful animal at a time.

Thank you for your attention, Carol Cina
