SB1003

After sitting in a hospital setting four four years with patients that were terminally ill, I discovered the meaning of life and how each person in their own way educates others. To take this away from a person who may be influenced, who have given them a feeling of dread, that they are being a hinderance to family or told they have no value defeats the purpose of life. We should not choose when a life ends. I believe that is still called murder.
