As an anesthesiologist I had many decades of using lethal drugs by IV and inhalation. No one died because I was well trained to use these medications safely. The news headlines of botched prison executions reveal what happens when these medications are used by inadequately trained persons. After I retired from medical practice I have volunteered at a local hospice for over 10 years and continue to do so. "Comfort Care" is humane and allows those suffering with pain to die in relative comfort without the need to kill them, which we choose to call "Assisted Suicide". We do not choose when we enter Life and we should not choose when to exit it.

Any legislation that changes our given length of life by self or assisted suicide is trampling on medical, moral, and religious ground. Who is really qualified to do that? Me neither.
